NonProfit HelpDesk Offers Courses at Hunter College

Brooklyn, NY, October 10, 2012 – The NonProfit HelpDesk (NPHD), a division of the Jewish Community Council of Greater Coney Island, is offering four classes in the Continuing Education program at Hunter College. This further extends the NPHD's relationship with CUNY, which already includes ties with Medgar Evers and Brooklyn College.

The classes includes a four-session development program for students identified as emerging leaders (the High Potential Student program), a full-day workshop on Coaching Essentials, and two part-day programs on Leading through Transition and on Conversational Coaching.

Chaya Abelsky, Director of the NonProfit HelpDesk, notes, "These will be valuable classes for both our primary audience of community-based nonprofit organizations and for entrepreneurs and others working in the for-profit sector."

The High Potential program offers participants a comprehensive executive assessment, development planning, and related group coaching. The program will start on December 5th. The Coaching Essentials workshop, which will be held on November 15th, will teach participants to think, speak and listen as coaches do. The workshop provides a combination of powerful coaching tools and body-mind based problem-solving techniques, and familiarizes students with the brain science behind these tools (no science background required).

The Conversational Coaching class will explore a conversational approach to coaching that facilitates a results-focused and action-oriented dialog that lead to insights for your team and productive, rewarding actions. It is scheduled for November 29th. Leading through Transition, scheduled for November 28th, will give participants a deep understanding of what is required to lead with authenticity in the face of change.
